

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

Announcement

- ¶ In July, 1919, there was offered in separate form the proceedings of the convention and the document itself of Washington's First Constitution, 1878, edited by Edmond S. Meany, Professor of History and John T. Condon, Dean of the Law School, University of Washington. Notice is now given that the remainder of the edition has been purchased by the N. A. Phemister Company, 42 Broadway, New York.
- ¶ It is planned to begin soon a companion to the above work, which will embrace the proceedings of the constitutional convention of 1889.
- ¶ Judge F. W. Howay, who contributes the leading article in this issue is one of the highly appreciated authorities on the history of the Pacific Northwest.
- ¶ Harry B. McElroy, of Olympia, has placed the University of Washington Library under further obligation by the contribution of more interesting manuscripts.
- ¶ William S. Lewis, Corresponding Secretary of the Eastern Washington State Historical Society, has in preparation a number of articles for this Quarterly.